Negroes Plan All-Out Effort To Integrate

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Negro integration leader, disclosed yesterday Montgomery Negroes will make an "all out effort" to desegregate schools here by the fall of 1959.

King said the integration attempts would be taken through the courts "only as a last resort."

He said Negroes would attempt to bring about integration "through understanding and co-operation of white leaders."

He said there would be no "massive resistance" in the sense of the Montgomery bus boycott of 1956 which led to the U.S. Supreme Court ordering integration of all public transportation.

Meanwhile Tuesday the Montgomery city commission closed all public parks—white and Negro—in an effort to block a suit filed Dec. 22 by eight Negroes demanding desegregation of the public facilities.

The decision to close the parks was unanimous by the three-man commission.

Plea to Courts Last Resort

"First of all we will try to get community support and then we will go to the board of education. There will be no attempts to register individual Negro students in any school and we will go to the courts only as a last resort," King said.

A recent Supreme Court decision upholding Alabama's pupil placement law, King said, "did not discourage us. The court upheld the law as constitutional on its 'face.' What we are trying to do is let the state of Alabama prove it is true to its own face."

The Negro minister said the court decision "does not mean the Supreme Court retreated in any sense. The court still stands on its decision that equal but separate facilities are inherently unequal and always will be."
